10 New App Store Games To Watch [May 14 - 20]

Colorforms Revolution – Colorforms is one of those toy ideas that when I think back on it, I'm amazed it was so much fun. Basically you stick a bunch of unanimated objects on top of a static picture. I guess there was something compelling about a scene that you had total control over. The brand name has endured for more than 60 years, and in the digital age you can now indulge in this bizarre fantasy on your iOS devices thanks to Colorforms Revolution. Play Set mode is what I remember from my childhood, and you get 8 different themes to manipulate and 180 stickers to work with. In Create mode you can play with more than 100 generic shapes, colors and patterns to create a geometric work of art. If you're looking for more of an actual game, Puzzle Board provides you with just that. This may not appeal to you as an adult, but it could be the perfect way to keep your kids busy while you play "grownup" games on another device.
